VOTES TO BE CAST IN NEARLY EVERY STATE FOR STATE,
MUNICIPAL OR CONGRES-SIONAL OFFICERS.

FIGHT IN NEW YORK CITY

Tammany and Anti-Tammany Legions
Lined Up in Three-Cornered Contest For Mayoralty.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 30.—Though full state tickets are to be voted for in only three states next Tuesday, there will be scarcely a Commonwealth of the Union without its election of minor officials, municipal or congressional contests or a ballot on proposed constitutional amendments to occupy its attention. The states which are to choose governors and other state officials are Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Virginia.

Politics in Massachusetts and Rhode Island loom up unusually large for an off year. Governor A. J. Bulfinch is the Republican candidate for reelection in Rhode Island. The Democrats have nominated Oliver Arnold, a Providence manufacturer, who was defeated by a narrow margin a year ago. In Massachusetts Governor Draper and Lieutenant Governor Frothingham head the Republican ticket for a second time. Arrayed against them on the Democratic side are James H. Vahoy, who was unsuccessful a year ago, and Eugene S. Foss, a wealthy manufacturer and a former Republican. Alleged extravagance in the management of state affairs forms the chief issue in the Massachusetts contest. In Rhode Island the fight hinges on the issue of reappointment and several proposed changes in the system of government.

G. O. P. Eyes on Virginia.

In Virginia, the governorship, along with other official places, is at stake and the question is what strength the Republicans will be able to develop after a most aggressive campaign and with the national Administration doing all in its power to help along the movement to break up the solid South. The fight on the governorship is the one which is being most discussed. Judge William H. Mann heads the Democratic ticket. The Republican candidate is William P. Kent. Both are admittedly able men and well qualified for the office of chief executive. The Republican leaders are making resolute promises of carrying the state. The more sober judgment of well-informed politicians is that this is not to be expected, but that it is possible that the Democratic majority may be cut into heavily.

Disfranchisement Issue in Maryland.

In Maryland, the amendment to the constitution to disfranchise colored voters is the issue that is attracting notice. The Republican leaders are fighting the amendment tooth and nail and they profess great confidence that they will defeat it. If they do it will result in placing Maryland in the doubtful column politically instead of making it solidly Democratic. The fight the Republicans claim to have the support of the independent voters and the foreign-born citizenship. On the other hand, the Democrats are relying principally on the rural vote, which is almost solidly in favor of the amendment to voters.

Contests in Other States

In New York State two justices of the Supreme Court are to be elected and the fate of several constitutional amendments of minor interest will be decided by the voters. Pennsylvania will elect an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. State Senator and Auditor General. Minor State officials will be voted for in Nebraska and one or two other states. In nearly all of the states where the elections are to be held tickets have been placed in the field by the Progressives and the Socialists, but neither party is expected to figure prominently in the results.

New York Fight Overshadows All.

Of more interest throughout the country than even the State elections is the mayoralty contest in New York city. Again it is the story of Tammany and anti-Tammany. Again there is a three-cornered fight involving the electoral situation with William B. Hearst, running as an independent candidate, again a prime factor as he was in the last municipal campaign in the metropolis. The Tammany candidate is William J. Gaynor, who personally has been an opponent of ring organization throughout his career. The Republican candidate is a union organizer, nominated for mayor Otto T. Hammond, a financier of standing, a man with a clean record, but one who never has been aggressive politically. The result of the three-cornered fight cannot be forecasted with any degree of certainty. Today, on the eve of the election, each side is claiming victory by pluralities ranging from 50,000 to 100,000 votes.

Many Cities To Vote.

Interesting municipal contests will be decided in numerous large cities throughout the country. In Philadelphia a bitter contest is on for the aldermanic and two minor offices, with a strong independent movement against the dominant Republican organization. While the contest among the independent is a "fight for civic righteousness" it is a fight for the identical elements that clashed in 1905, with State Senator James P. McNichol, political boss, on one side, and D. C. Gibson, independent Democratic candidate for district attorney, on the other. As the district attorneyship is regarded politically as the most important office outside the mayoralty, this is regarded as a contest of greater importance than that of four years ago, when the Republican organization was defeated by 43,000 majority.

The contest in San Francisco is similar in many respects to that in Philadelphia. The fight hinges on the district attorneyship, with the contin-

tion of the graft prosecution as the most prominent issue. District Attorney Francis J. Henney, who conducted the graft prosecution, is a candidate for reelection. He is opposed by Charles M. McLeod, who was nominated on the Republican and Union Labor tickets. William Crocker is running for mayor on the Republican ticket and Dr. T. W. H. Leland is the Democratic candidate. The Union Labor party has its own mayoralty candidate.

Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland is a candidate for his fifth consecutive term, and is opposed by Herman C. Bacher, the Republican candidate. In Cincinnati an interesting contest is on for the mayoralty between Dr. Louis Schwab (Republican) and John Weld Peck (Democrat.) Mayoralty contests in other cities of Ohio and in New York and New Jersey present more or less interesting features. Boston does not elect a mayor, but the voters will decide upon the choice of two plans looking to non-partisan government. Topeka will accept or reject a plan for the commission form of government.

In the Second Washington district a representative to succeed the late Francis W. Chalmers. The Republicans have nominated Judge W. W. McCredie of Vancouver and the Democrats have named Ernest Lister of Tacoma.

Many Going Home To Vote.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 30.—As this is an off year in politics, the number of voters going out of Washington is not so large as in presidential and congressional years. Nevertheless it is estimated that nearly a thousand department employees will go home to vote, not counting those who go to the nearby States of Virginia and Maryland.

The whole town of the rally, under the auspices of the Interurban Suffrage council, was kept within conservative limits as a tacit protest against the punker meeting and the militant methods involved. It is understood that so fixed was the determination of Mrs. Clarence Mackay, chairman of the platform committee, to keep the demands reasonable and dignified that she refused to permit the insertion of two planks which verged on sensationalism or suggested partisanship.

It was on this score that the "white slave" question was untouched and that the platform, which Mrs. Mackay read, asked such action as concerns women's position as a civic and national factor.

It appears that thieves broke into the corn-crib back of the slaughter-house, taking off two of the boards and removing a quantity of corn. Part of the corn had been strewn around on the ground. To make escape easy, the marauders cut the fence wire nearby.

BANKERS TO COME HERE NEXT YEAR

Meeting at Waukegan Yesterday Was Eventful One—S. M. Smith and Frank Jackson Present.

S. M. Smith and Frank Jackson returned here this morning from Waukegan where they attended the annual session of Group 6 of the state association of bankers. The group includes 114 banks located in nine of the southern counties of Wisconsin and 102 of them are represented in the organization. About 75 members were present and the attendance was the largest on record. This is interesting in view of the fact that, thanks to the efforts of H. A. Mookkophoff of Clinton, retiring secretary and treasurer, and S. M. Smith, newly appointed member of the executive committee, the bankers will probably be entertained in Janesville next autumn.

The meeting proved to be an unusually important one as the bankers went on record in a resolution as opposing any steps toward the adoption of a bank guaranty law in Wisconsin at this time and asked proposition to not to include such a proposition in the call for a special session. It such call is issued, the action was taken after James K. Wiley, president of the Marshall & Wiley bank in Milwaukee, had given the bankers the benefit of his personal investigation of the experiments in Oklahoma and elsewhere. A resolution calling on the state association to take some action looking towards an amendment of the national banking which will permit national banks to loan a certain portion of their deposits (not less than 20 per cent) on real estate security, was also passed. The address by George E. Roberts, president of the Commercial Nat'l bank of Chicago, presenting strong arguments in favor of a central bank, cast some new light on a proposition which has not hitherto been regarded with much favor and created a profound impression.

The Rothstein hotel where the visitors were entertained was an luxurious and complete in its appointments as any of the big metropolitan curvanceries. Solid mahogany bedroom sets and real Turkish rugs in all the rooms are some of the "features." Senator John M. Whitehead, A. P. Harbath, and other local people are stockholders in the enterprise.

SCIENCE CONQUERS ALL OPPOSITION

CALORIC COMPANY EXPERIMENTS PROVE SUCCESSFUL WHEN TRIED.

MODERN METHODS USED

What Can Be Found at the Company That Manufactures the Fireless Cooker.

When the college boy returned home to eat the Thanksgiving dinner with his old folks down on the farm he shattered their faith in college by saying incidentally that it was not the fire that had cooked the dinner, but Caloric.

A confirmation of the student's philosophy came with some force to a Gazette reporter, who recently visited the works of the Caloric Stove Co. of Janesville. In that unique establishment, where things are done in full recognition of scientific principles, it was only necessary to observe the process of making the Caloric cookstove in order to understand that there exists an essential difference between fire and Caloric.

When one enters the home of the now famed Caloric stove his immediate impression is that he has stepped over the threshold of a sanctuary devoted to scientific investigation. You come in contact immediately with men and things about which seem to float in an atmosphere in which it is a delight to breathe.

Entering, as the Gazette reporter did, unadorned, the workshop of the young electrician of the plant, surrounded with a world of intricate electrical appliances, both his delight and his wonderment were aroused by the environment. "What is he doing," thought the reporter, and when vocally the same question was propounded he was shown a Caloric cookstove under electrical test in its own home before sending it upon its journey to its permanent home of service in some American family.

Perhaps, at this point a digression is necessary: all Caloric cookstoves do not use the Caloric of the electric spark. Indeed the greater number of them are ready for operation where an electrical connection is possible. Properly to understand this fact one must consider the structure of the Caloric and the process of their manufacture.

To begin with the Caloric presents themselves as plain boxes or cabinets built of oak handsomely finished with the brush. Inside the lid of one of these cabinets, reinforced with the proper insulation, between the metal sides lie one or more compartments which answer the purpose of an oven in a range. At the bottom of a compartment belongs a stone known as Steatite, and this is heated to an ordinary range-oven temperature for an interval of twenty minutes. The stone is then placed in the bottom of the compartment, the meat, vegetable, or pastry placed upon the stove, the lid of the cabinet closed and the Caloric will begin and complete perfectly the work of preparing your meal.

Hence, it may be seen that any ordinary stove will suffice to heat the heat-absorbing Steatite, while if it is not desirable to start a fire in a range for this purpose, one may use the ordinary electric current supplied in the home for lighting, and attachable to a switch connected with a heat-conserving pad, which answers the identical purpose of the Steatite stove.

Everything but the metal fixtures used in the construction of the Caloric is made in their elaborate plant, and it is only a matter of a few months when all metal attachments of these wonderful cooking stoves will be made in the home plant.

In going over the Caloric Stove company's works you proceed through a great workshop both busy and interesting. Passing the offices you enter the wood-working department and find yourself amidst an assemblage of skillful craftsmen devoting themselves to some step or other in the making of the cases or cabinets for the Caloric, then you come, by ascending stairs, to a thoroughly equipped wood-working machine shop where the initial steps in the preparatory woodwork are traced, then another ascent of stairs, and you come to the varnish or color floor where the wood gets its final polish, and then you return downward to another floor where all the parts of the Caloric are assembled and put together with precision and rapidity.

The stoves are made in various sizes, containing one, two, or three compartments, all of which are thoroughly insulated and fire-proof although enclosed in their wooden cases. A stove having but one compartment will suffice, if artfully handled, to prepare a dinner for an average family.

The results obtained by the use of the Caloric are fourfold—economy of fuel, economy of the cook's time, elimination of all possibility of burning, and the saving to the meat or vegetable of all those savory juices partially lost in the old-time range, even under the management of the best cooks. A potato or duck baked in a Caloric have a zest not to be obtained by our mother's utmost skill.

One would think that it were barely possible to heat the Steatite sufficiently within twenty minutes to cook a roast requiring two hours to make done, but the fact is that without burning the temperature will easily rise to 500 degrees, while but 375 degrees are necessary to perfect roasting.

It should be borne in mind that the Caloric cookstoves are not of the slightest resemblance in type, method, or principle to those rude and inefficient contrivances commonly offered to the public as fireless cookers. They are in fact far beyond anything having any similarity and are being placed before the world defying competition yet assured of no possibility of rivalry.

The manufacturers of the Caloric cookstove are also manufacturing the highest grade of mahogany and quartered oak dining tables, and many of their creations in this line are superbly hand-carved. No doubt the reason for combining the two products in the one factory exists in the fact that so much superior wood-working is necessary in the construction of the stove cabinets and cases that one department supplements the other and lessens the waste of material.

The Caloric company entered the Industrial life of Janesville about one year ago, coming here from Grand Rapids, where it began business five years ago quite without resources. Its removal to Janesville was caused by simply outgrowing its Grand Rapids plant. Orders were coming in so rapidly larger quarters were required and these were found in the Hoover City. It has settled here to stay and is assured of the future. When starting in Janesville one year ago it gave employment to twelve or fifteen men; now ninety people are carried on its payroll, and today the plant is being enlarged to meet the increased demand for its goods, and in the very near future another enlargement is planned. The management foresees as wide a field and as big a plant for the Caloric cookstoves as the Buck Stove company, or any other of the great range-building firms, have held or used.

ALL-STEEL COACHES WILL BE INSTALLED

Trial Trip Taken by St. Paul Officials Demonstrated Their Usefulness.

According to reports, the test made by the St. Paul officials with regard to the practicability of all steel cars by their trip on a trial train which passed through Janesville, Thursday morning, has proven a complete success and has demonstrated conclusively that all-steel cars for general passenger service on the steam roads can be used to advantage.

The experiment was conducted by A. J. Earling, president of the road, who was accompanied by nearly every executive member of his operating staff.

In order to settle many mooted questions regarding the kind of service all-steel Pullman cars would give, Mr. Earling made a twenty-four hour run with a special train in which were four new cars of this type. The result of the trip was eminently satisfactory and it caused the St. Paul road to decide to use nothing but all-steel cars in the future. Accordingly as fast as old equipment wears out and new is needed, cars which are all steel, both underneath and superstructure, will be ordered.

The special train consisted of six cars and the trip was so planned that the cars would be run over all kinds and conditions of road bed and track. During the twenty-four-hour run the officials went as far west as McGregor, Iowa, then over the Prairie du Chien division, then the St. Paul and home by way of Madison, Wis.

All of the officials who were on board were "keyed" up for noises or defects in operation, but not one of them could say at the end of the trip that anything had been discovered derogatory to the all-steel car.

So far as known this is the first test of the kind ever made and it goes far to remove the last straw standing in the way of substitution of all-steel cars for wooden frames or part wood and part steel frames.

Engineer Higgins and Fireman Stahn doubled-headed Carroll and McAllister in on 92 last night with engine 1257.

ROOTERS' SPECIAL THIS MORNING

Three coaches, with a big red "R" on the engine and a pumpkin on the rear platform of the last car, composed a special train which passed through here this morning at eleven o'clock carrying the Ripon college football team and a number of rooters to Beloit, where the players played, and the rooters "rooted" this afternoon. The students were not very noisy and Conductor Mogler, who piloted the special to Beloit, had no trouble.

TO PUT PILOTS BETWEEN NEW YARDS AND STATION

On account of the fact that there is no block system between the station and the new yards, it is thought that before very long, a pilot will be put on all engines running between the two points. In the past and at the present time, engineers have been compelled to run under control all the way.

Master Mechanic Axen was here from Baraboo this morning to inspect the crown sheet on engine 1116 which was scorched at Brooklyn last night.

Henry Meyers has worked twelve hours a day and seven days a week for the past year without taking an hour, so to celebrate the event he is laying off for two days. His record is 4380 consecutive hours.

Fireman R. K. Smith went south on an extra at 10:30 last night with Engineer Gotsick, on account of Engineer Gotsick's Fireman "getting sick."

Fireman W. M. Smith reported for work today and expects to go on the board Monday.

Frank Zenrow, who has been working nights at the round-house, has been transferred to the day force.

Fireman Gordon reported for work on 319 last night. Fireman Fleming, who has been relieving him, is on the board.

Engineer Starritt is taking L. Gest-

land's place on the switch-engine today.

Machinist Hoffman is walking "Spauld" today on account of a badly mashed toe.

Misery in Head

"I had misery in my head, was irritable—wretched. A druggist recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine. From the first I improved, and I continued until I was entirely well again." MISS VIOLET BAKER, Orange, Texas.

If you are subject to headache, backache, neuralgia, epilepsy, weak stomach, the chances are your nervous system is run down. All the organs get their energy from the nerves, and when they are out of order, it is because you lack nerve force.

Dr. Miles' Nervine restores nervous energy and consequently strengthens the action of the organs. The first bottle will benefit; if not, your druggist will return your money.

A SOUTHERN IDEA
OF THE HOOK WORM

Rockefeller's Gift of a Million to Study the Disease Brings Forth An Answer.

Announcement in the papers that Rockefeller has given a million dollar hook worm disease in the south brings forth the following article from a man born south of the Mason and Dixon line who knows the south, the negroes and the poor whites, as only a southern man can know them. He writes for the Gazette as follows:

Surely Mr. Rockefeller is not serious with the south. He seems to be playing a game though no one accuses him of having a lizard in his sleeve. Perhaps he is seeking friendship in a quarter where there has never been antagonism. The south hates nobody, not even Mr. Rockefeller or the hook worm. One thing the south will not do and that is to resent the old king's gift. It will merely smile and pity the awful waste of good dollars. Why so? Because not ninety-nine percent of the southern folk ever heard of the supposed pest, or have seen any visible effect of its presence.

Taking every day of southern life and two hundred years of southern history as criterion, one would say, who knows the south, give us more hook worms. It was the plain southern people, the cracker with the supposed hook worm, that made the history of the south. He did his share in the revolution; he conquered the British at New Orleans; he waved his flag in triumph in the halls of Monte Zuma; he fought, and he only made it possible to fight the terrible battles where Lee, Jackson and Johnson threw the law. Not only these things did the cracker with the lazy-bug do, but being brave, impulsive, and loving adventure, he left the South Atlantic coast country and took Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas and the southwest from the Indians. He gave two presidents to the union, Jackson and Lincoln, both of whom were southern crackers, and today that same good-natured, brave, unselfish cracker is doing the work of southern rehabilitation in mill and forest and stubble-field.

Yes, there may be hook worms in southern stomachs; and there are other worms in northern stomachs. We are not a perfect people. Moral degeneracy in New York and Chicago submerge more of humanity than is hurt in the south by the hook worm.

BULLET ENDANGERS
CLEVELAND'S MAYOR

Shot Fired by Drunken Man Passes Within Three Feet of Tom L. Johnson.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 30.—A sensational report based upon the fact that John E. Olney, 38 years of age, fired a shot through a window of a downtown cafe from the sidewalk caused a rumor to spread that an attempt had been made to assassinate Mayor Tom L. Johnson.

It happened that Mayor Johnson and a companion were entering the cafe at the moment, but the mayor was not hurt. Olney had been drinking heavily, and is under arrest on the charge of violating the firearms ordinance.

Olney's son was with him when he entered the cafe. The bartender who waited upon the man said Olney was in such a condition that he felt justified in refusing to serve him with a drink.

Olney mumbled a threat and went outside. Upon the walk he drew a revolver and pointed it at a window. At this instant Mayor Johnson and Councilman Bernstein were entering the cafe by way of the ladies' entrance, a few feet to the right of Olney. The Austrian fired through the window. The direction of the bullet was toward the passageway the mayor entered.

RICH PITTSBURGER KILLS SELF.
It's Intimated He Has Been Plunging In Stocks.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 30.—Edward Steinhauer, member of one of the oldest rich families in Pittsburg, supposed to be worth more than $1,000,000 in his own name, shot and killed himself in a most tragic manner at the American house here. It is intimated by some that Steinhauer had been plunging in the stock market.

Steinhauer was 38 years old and his last thoughts were for his mother, grandmother and sisters, whom he did not want thrown into a panic by having news of his suicide telephoned, nor did he wish them to see his mutilated body until it had been fixed up. He arranged for all this just before shooting himself.

Woman Prevents Robbery.

New York, Oct. 30.—When she saw her husband about to be held up and robbed in his store, Mrs. Isaac Lipschitz grabbed a handful of pepper and threw it into the eyes of the three men, one of whom held a revolver and was threatening to shoot. The pepper blinded the men for a few seconds and then they ran out. Later detectives arrested Nathan Kaplan, 18 years old, and he was identified as one of the hold-up men.

WOODROW WILSON.

Princeton, N. J.—As Princeton University this week celebrates its 163rd anniversary the work of President Woodrow Wilson as an educator and a university builder stands out in a more pronounced manner than ever. To transform the social, educational and physical aspect of 20 old a university is no light task, but Woodrow Wilson has accomplished this since 1902. The institution of a preceptorial system marked an epoch in American education. In this system President Wilson solved the problem of combining the benefits derived from smaller colleges from personal contact with instructors with the broadening influence of a large university. Under President Wilson's influence many new buildings have been erected, mainly by the alumni of the university, so that now Princeton possesses an unusually attractive line of dormitories and other buildings practically surrounding the entire campus and all carrying out one central idea of architecture. During the last year buildings whose cost has amounted to over $2,000,000 have either been already opened or are now in course of construction.

President Wilson is a broad thinker and plans far into the future. He possesses strong executive ability combined with keen judgment. Never has a president of Princeton made his personality felt more keenly in the first years of his administration than has Woodrow Wilson.

THEATRE

When Eugene Walter's great comedy drama is presented by the Wagner & Kemper Company at the Myers Theatre tonight it will be under conditions to arouse liveliest interest even on the part of the most infrequent attendants at the theatre. The play itself is the strongest dramatic attraction of the day. It is entertaining in highest degree, and it unites with those features that make a play universally popular, a merit and a worth that stamp it as a really notable achievement in dramatic construction and proclaim its author the genius of the time. "Paid in Full" is a remarkable extent combines excellence and entertainment for persons of whatever taste. No one can fail to feel the clutch of this intensely human drama, to yield to its deep heart interest, to respond to its power, to enjoy its abundance of genuine comedy. There is a clever story, ingenious and alive in every moment. There are situations powerfully dramatic and broadly humorous in turn. There are striking characters who live the story of the play. In this respect, as in all others, the author has shown admirable skill. He has the persons in the play tell it in action. There is movement, clear-cut and brisk, from first to last, in the deeper as in the lighter phases. There is not a moment in which the appeal of the play is not effective, nor is there a person who can escape its tremendous force. It is a play that improves on repetition. It is more enjoyable a second time than the first. Those who see it wish to do so again. This extraordinary power has made it the biggest dramatic success of the time. In the comparative short time since it was first brought out, more than three million persons have attended the performance of "Paid in Full." That record far outtops any other. It speaks unmistakably for the extraordinary popularity of the play. Just as is the claim of "Paid in Full" on public attention, its demand is the greater now from the fact that it will be seen by the most brilliant company that has ever appeared in it. The company that will present the play here is the exceptionally talented cast from the Astor Theatre, New York, that is making a short tour previous to long engagements in Philadelphia and Boston, before returning to New York. At the outset of the current season it celebrated the third year for "Paid in Full" in New York City, the record of the world in point of time for any play in any place. Those who miss seeing this play with this cast will show indifference to the greatest attraction the stage today offers.

MARTHA WENDT,
Notary Public.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

It isn't the job we intend to do
Or the labor we've just begun
That puts us right on the ledger sheet;
It's the work we have really done.

Our credit is built upon things we do,
Our debt on things we shrink,
The man who totals the biggest plus
Is the man who completes his work.

Good intentions do not pay bills;
It's easy enough to plan.
To wish is the play of an office boy;
To do is the job of a man.
—Richard Lord, in System.

Every line of this choice sentiment
Is true to the letter. The world is crowded with people of good intentions,
but there is always room in the ranks
of the doers.

Planning for the work of life at the
outlet is always commendable, but
this is only the initial work, and unless
accomplishment follows, results
fail. The men who do things are the men in demand and they were never
in greater demand than today.

Several years ago one of the officials
of the Canadian Pacific road
walked into the office of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul and said, "I am looking for a young man by the name
of Shanaway."

"That's him over there at the desk,"
was the reply, and a red-headed young Irishman was pointed out.

"Shanaway, I have heard something about your work and I want you to go to Montreal with me tonight and accept
a position with the Canadian Pacific."

Shanaway went and made good.
Promotion followed promotion in rapid succession and today he is at the head
of that great railway system with an army of 75,000 men in his employ and
still making good.

Thirty-five years ago a barefooted
boy was carrying water for a gang of
workmen out on the line of the Union Pacific. In time he was given a shovel
and set to work.

Amidst promptings him to study
and long into the night he pored over
law books until at last he was ready to be admitted to the bar. A clerkship
in a western attorney's office followed
and then he commenced to do things.

Soon he was admitted to the firm,
and the late E. H. Harriman ran up against him on one of his western trips.

The great financier was always looking for men who could do things, and the western boy was to his liking, so he called him to New York and put him
in the legal department of his great
railway system.

Judge Lovett continued to make good and today he succeeds the man
who found him, in the obscure western
town, as president of the Union Pacific.

A dozen years ago a bright Irish
lad from a humble home left Janesville
and went to Chicago. Two or three years later he enlisted in the 11th U. S.
Infantry and went to the Philippines.

Army life did not appeal to him, and
taking the civil service examination
he was admitted to government employ
under Governor Taft. Promotions
followed and when Governor Smith
was elected John Darrig became his private secretary.

He is returning tomorrow, after a visit to his old home, to assume the

responsible position of assistant chief of the civil service commission, with 8,000 American and native employees
to handle.

These experiences are being repeated,
not only in the business and financial
world, but in every department of life, for the demand is universal for people who do things.

Down in the residence district of Detroit, half a dozen years ago, was a little stone mission chapel, the property
of a weak, struggling society
which was badly in debt and ready to quit.

A young man was assigned to the
pastorate, but the outlook was so discouraging
that his bishop advised him
to abandon the field. The advice was not followed, for the young man was not built along those lines. So he took off his coat and went to work.

Today the little chapel has disappeared,
but in its place is a beautiful
modern church, costing $100,000, out
of debt and supported by a membership
of more than 1,000, with a Sunday school enrolling 800 scholars.

The Rev. Edgar Blake, secretary of the Methodist Sunday school board,
who spoke in Janesville last Sunday,
was a classmate of the young Detroit
pastor, and when he visited him not long ago was surprised at his wonderful
success, and said to him:
"Well, John, how did you do it?"

Taking him by the arm, John said:
"Come down stairs and I'll show you
my plant."

He had been admiring the beautiful
auditorium, but "downstairs" was a revelation, for in addition to church
parlors the basement was equipped
with a modern gymnasium, swimming pool, shower baths and every up-
pliance for indoor athletics.

"This is the plant where success
has been worked out," said the pastor,
"and is still accomplishing great results."

"You don't mean to say," said his friend, "that the gymnasium has been
the gateway to the church?"

"Most emphatically," was the reply.
"Hundreds of our young people have come in through this entrance."

Then he told him about a class of
boys on his football team, wide-awake
young fellows who cared more for the game than for the church until one of
their number, who was a general favorite,
was attacked with pneumonia.

He was desperately sick and hope
was abandoned, when the boys called on the pastor, whom they regarded as a comrade, and said with tears in their eyes, "Isn't there something we can do for Billy?"

The pastor said, "I don't know what we can do, boys; the doctors have done everything possible for him and I don't know of anything more unless we ask God to save him. Shall we pray for Billy?"

Then down on their knees they
bowed and pleaded earnestly that God
would spare the life of Billy.

That evening they called at the house to ask for Billy. The father
met them and said, "If he lives till
morning the doctors say he may pull
through."

Billy lived, and the boys who
prayed for him in that first earnest
supplication believed that the prayer
was answered. It was only a step
across the threshold into the church.

Here is a pastor that is doing things
in the religious world. Six years transformed the little chapel into a strong society equipped for valiant
service.

The work was accomplished with-
out the aid of "Gypsy" Smith or "Billy"
Sunday, and no sensational methods were employed. He simply used
the material at hand, and recognizing
that the future of the church depends upon the boys and girls of the generation
waiting just across the border,
every energy was exhausted to hold
this incoming force and utilize it.

He succeeded by doing practical
work along practical lines, adopting
"the new thought," which Mr. Blake
discussed so earnestly, and which means the saving of Protestant children
to Protestant churches and not allowing them to drift away and go to the devil in order to have them re-
claimed by sensational methods.

This new thought, so forcefully exemplified in the work of the Detroit
pastor, and his church in sympathy
with him, is a work which every
church and every pastor can well afford to endorse and adopt. When it is done the problem of church attendance will be solved and solved right,
for it is the legitimate field of opportunity always ready for the harvest.

PRESS COMMENT.

Good Doctrine.
The Janesville Leader hits at the railroads by saying: "If the great dairy show were in St. Paul or Minneapolis, dozens of Janesville people
would go there. But it is in Milwaukee,
in our own state, and we recall
no one from here being present. It would pay Wisconsin's metropolis to build some railroad line that really
gave her good service to this part of the state."

In a Shadow Anyway.
The Milwaukee Sentinel says: "We are told that meat prices are to rise
after a brief cut. For some years
the cut appears to have been getting brief. Now one almost has to make a stab for it in the dark."

Same Here.
The Wausau Herald recognizes the small boy. "It is asserted that it would be of any use, this paper would
publish a column or two of hallowe'en
doodles. But it would be good space
wasted, as no boy would pay the slightest attention."

Saves Money, Eh?
The Eau Claire Telegram believes
that a state normal school tends to save the community in which it is located a great deal of money. Reduction of the expense for teachers'
wages to the extent of thousands of

dollars annually, and saving of other
thousands by the fact that a large number of pupils can attend the model
departments in the normal school instead of the local schools, are possibilities.

Honest Fraze.
Editor Board in the Jefferson County Union, says: "President Taft is a straight, square man. He does not expect to agree with every man or be agreed with, but he plays open and
fair and he never abuses other men
for disagreeing with him."

How About Cider?
The Tomah Monitor-Herald tells of
the fact that the Wisconsin orchards
will ship over 50,000 barrels of apples
to the markets this year. There is not a county in Wisconsin in which
the apple orchard cannot be made very profitable and, in the future, there
will be many more orchards than at present.

Watch 'Em!
The Monmouth Record thinks that
now that game warden do not get
one-third of the fine it will be interesting to see how faithfully they do
their work.

Keeps Quiet Anyway.
The Eau Claire Leader says that the position taken by Gov. Davidson in the present circumstances is an admirable one. He is not calling for household for a renomination, but apparently is attending to his work
at Madison and—well, perhaps his friends are doing the rest.

Keep Watch.
The Wausau Post issues a warning to farmers by saying that this is
the season when many farmers fail
to realize the importance of providing proper housing and ample feed for all kinds of farm stock. One cold storm
will knock out a year's profit of a milk cow, a winning colt, a spring
lamb or a September pig.

Not in Janesville.
The Green Bay Gazette is a possi-
mist. It says: "Another telephone company has been organized by the farmers near Appleton. These rural lines are becoming numerous and
when there are enough patrons to warrant it the trust will be willing to absorb them."

Squirrels Busy.
The Berlin Journal deplors the fact that the farmers have been more
this season about letting parties into their hickory groves. They are not to be blamed for this, either. Nine out of ten farmers will let you pick
in his grove if you go to the house
and ask him beforehand. You would not like to have the farmers come in-
to your yard and help themselves to
your garden truck, would you?

Is Entirely Blind.
The Antigo Journal swallows everything, even John Strange's honesty
and sincerity. It has the following to say: "No matter whether you are a supporter of John Strange for governor or not, if you are honest you cannot help but admire the stand he has taken since he announced his candidacy for governor. We have had so much 'puppy' politics in the state that it is really refreshing to have a man come out for office on his own initiative and stand firmly on the platform of common sense. That is what Strange is doing and he is netting the man."

Honor to Dr. Gordon.
The Madison Journal: The Oshkosh
Northwestern printed a column editorial tribute to the late Dr. W. A.
Gordon in which the latter's name
was nowhere mentioned. It was a delicate compliment happily turned;
the tribute could fit none other.

Good Advice.
The Marinette Eagle-Star suggests,
applied, that there are many people who
wonder where their boys and girls
pick up so much mischief. Keep them off the streets at night. There is where the devil carries on his most successful course of instruction in vice, profligacy and crime. To do this make the home the brightest and most winsome place on earth.

Think of This.
The Shawano Advocate says the Oshkosh Northwestern is one of the leading dailies in this part of the state and its editor, Colonel Hicks, is
by far one of the ablest editorial
writers in the state, and then he wants the men who have stood by
him for years to follow a new love.

THE POET PHILOSOPHER
BY PAUL MASON
(Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams.)

Tonight the boys will take the town,
and doubtless turn it upside down;
they'll sport around with joyous zeal,
and knock the band-

HALLOWE'EN scape galley woad;
and when the morning comes I'll see my buggy in an apple tree; the sidewalk piled upon
the lawn, the hens with all their fan-
tles gone; I'll hear my trusty milk-
cow yell down at the bottom of the well,
while Dobbie stands upon the roof
and waves for help a frantic hoof.
Last year the boys wrought while I slept, and in the morn I screamed and wept, when looking at the work they'd done, I said: "Next year I'll get a gun, and watch for these mischievous
souls, and shoot the darlings full of holes." But granny heard me, and she said: "While water's cheap, go
soak your head; you once were young
yourself, by George; and people voted
you a scoundrel; you played so many
florid tricks, you filled so many hats
with bricks, that terror came to every one when you went forth to have some fun. The village pastor used to say: 'When that young rascal
comes my way, I always beat a swift
retreat.'—I'd rather have the prickly heat!" And so I haven't bought a gun; and so the boys may have their
fun; and if the morning should dis-
close the chimney filled with garden
brows, the watchdog painted green and
brown, the bonhouse standing upside
down, I'll make no melancholy noise,
but say: "Boys (durn 'em) will be boys."

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

SPILLED MILK.
When Rudyard Kipling wrote "The Necessitous," one of the finest poems
in the English language and the highest note ever struck by Kipling, he threw it into the wastebasket.

The great poem was rescued by accident.
Kipling did not realize he had written a classic. Having done the best work of his life, he thought it a failure.
Mistakes in judgment are common to us all. Sometimes when we are on the verge of accomplishment we throw up
our hands in failure.

We forget that the darkest hour is
just before the dawn.
Never acknowledge defeat, because
defeat is often the only stepping stone
to later victory.

Abraham Lincoln was great in many
things, and one of these was his refusal to regard defeat as final.

When during those historic debates
with Douglas he proposed to put certain questions to "the Little Giant" his friends brought him not to do so. They told him he would lose the senator-
ship from Illinois. Keen Joe Mc-Adams, editor of the Chicago Tribune,
told Lincoln he was sounding his own death knell. Nevertheless Lincoln persisted.

He lost the senatorship, but gained
the presidency.
Lincoln understood, as the group of
able men about him did not, that we
rise on stepping stones of our dead
selves to higher things.

After all, success and failure are comparative.
Ignoble success is successful failure.
Noble failure is success.

Because, while noble action may fail
of recognition for the time, in the end
of things it counts for success.

Therefore—
Your temporary failure may be worth more to you in the long run than immediate success. If it is honorable failure and against odds
you have no reason for blaming yourself. You did the best you could.
Hold up your chin and try it again!

Your failure may reveal to you a
weakness you had not suspected.
Credit the failure to experience and go on.

Above all things—
Never cry over spilled milk.
Life is too short to grieve, and there
is too much milk in the world to bother
your head. Let the spilled stuff go and go after more milk.

Never admit defeat to yourself.
Success comes only as the climax of
a series of defeats.

YAMA YAMA LAND.
"The world's like an apple;
You've heard that before,
You know what's outside,
But you can't see the core;
And no one can tell you
About it, what's more
But the fellow that on the inside."

This little production is found on the title page of "Yama Yama Land,"
a very attractive children's book from
the presses of the Kelley and Britton
company. The author, Grace Duffey Boylan, acquired name and fame
through her production, "Kiddie Many Colors."

More than 1,000,000 persons have seen Bessie McCoy and her troupe of triangular Yama Yamas present the famous act called "The Yama Yama Man." The universal interest aroused by this grotesquely funny and
wild performance had the effect of weaving around the Yama Yamas a wonderful legend of a wonderful man—
the Yama Yama man—seen, unknown, but known to be here, there,
anywhere, everywhere. From this
mere whisper of so strange a character, Grace Duffey Boylan has traced
him to his queer home and his equally queer people. In doing this the author has given adventures of the rarest quality to a fair-haired little Sybil who occupies will open wide
the eyes and imaginations of all children of the fairy-tale age. Cull for
the book, it will charm you.

THE CLEVER GIRL.

Uncle Ezra says:
"What good he riches of you don't
spend 'em, an' then what good be
they of you do?"

HALLOWE'EN

My father ordered some wood
from this morning, miss. Do you know whether he wants hard or soft?

THE ELECTRICAL WORLD

TURBINES ROTATED BY RIVER.

Immense Horse-Power of Mississippi
Between St. Paul and Minneapolis to Be Harnessed.

The unusual sight may soon be witnessed of huge turbines rotated by
the water of the Mississippi passing
from the upper to the lower level of a great lock built originally by the United States government for quite another purpose. The dam is one of two erected to improve navigation on the Mississippi just above St. Paul, but an exhaustive investigation just completed by a commission of government
engineers, acting with local officers,
city officials of St. Paul and Minneapolis, and prominent business men, has demonstrated that 15,000-horse power
of electrical energy can be developed
there by the expenditure of an additional $250,000, says Literary Digest.

We quote from a circular sent out by the Consolidated Publicity bureau of St. Paul, which says:

"The government makes the unusual
proposition that it will permit the use
of power at the lock, provided the two cities or other interests will bear the additional cost. That the power will be used is already settled. Whether
it will be used by a private power
company, or used jointly by the state
of Minnesota and the two adjacent
cities, is a question which will be determined by a joint commission composed of three men named by Gov.
Johnson and three by each of the two
mayors.

The government has completed
one lock and dam, and partly completed the second, or lower of the two.
To develop the power the second dam
must be raised 15 feet, utilizing present foundations and the work already completed. This will provide a 30-
foot dam, raising a large head of water and developing enormous power.

Lower Lock at St. Paul.

The state is already interested and
wishes a part of the power for use at
the state university near the State Agricultural school, which is one of the largest in the United States, and the state fair grounds. The government requires 1,000-horse power, and
the two cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis have need of the balance.

"The government's proposition,
while it does not establish a precedent, is unusual and the proposed improvement will be the first of its kind
in the northwestern United States.
The investigations prove that the power can be developed at exceptionally low cost. The most important problems now to be faced are the division of the expenses and the division of power to be developed as between the government, state and the cities. The partnership in power,
while novel, has been proven feasible.
The power plant when built will be
only a short distance from Fort Snelling, an immense military post, and
convenient both to the state institutions and to St. Paul and Minneapolis.
The report of the joint commission will be made to the board of engineers, after which the project will be referred to Washington. Legislation will be required before St. Paul
and Minneapolis will be able to participate in the cost."

CEREALS COMPARED.

Cereals differ much in digestibility and nutrition. Wheat (unbolted) is nearest the ideal in proportion of food elements, approaching milk; oats is richest in mineral food and contains some fat, like the nut, and an acid which, like the phosphoric acid in the peanut, may be a natural brain stimulant; rye is the most easily digested, little inferior to rice in this regard; corn contains the most oil. Corn bread, baked slowly at low temperature, is better for children, less liable, especially if meat is allowed, to develop intestinal troubles, particularly appendicitis, than fine white bread. Southern white corn contains most phosphorus. Meal can be made from this by grinding from the cob through a common tin grater, making a good bread for children especially.

LONG ISLAND MURDER SOLVED. Fred Gebhardt, alias Otto Mueller, who admits crime.

New York.—The Long Island murder mystery has been solved. Through the help of the Hamburg police the victim was identified as Annie Luther. Her husband was located and after the cross-examination by the police confessed to the crime. Too many wives he assigns as a reason for killing her. The man is Fred Gebhardt, who married Annie Luther under the name of Otto Mueller. His confession follows:

"About December, 1907, I first met Anna Luther. We were married in February, 1908, and went to Europe to live. We returned April 6, 1908. She went to Henry Werluppe in Newark, N. J., to spend a day or two. On the pretense that I was going to rent an apartment for us to live in, I returned to my home and wife in Astoria.

"I met Anna again on April 8, in Newark, and we went to an address in Thirty-fourth street, New York, and then to Jamaica, L. I. We stayed in Jamaica until next day.

"April 9 we went to Bay Shore and we walked about and I showed her some pretty property. I got into an argument with her about some money matters and I turned away and wanted to go back. She followed me up, screaming, and I shot her in the head. I didn't look at her, and do not remember whether I shot her more than once.

"Immediately after I went to the jail depot and took a train for home. It was nearly dark. On the way home on the train I threw the revolver out of the car window.

"I want to state that I did not kill Anna Luther for her money, as the newspapers have stated. My original reason for marrying Anna was that I didn't care to live with my first wife any longer, but she—my first wife—had given me a child, my desire to again see my child caused me to want to get rid of Anna Luther and return to my first wife and child.

"That is the reason why I shot Anna Luther, and I told her in Bay Shore that I was married and had a wife and child and must leave her.

"She screamed and ran after me, and kissed me and wanted me back and I shot her.

"This confession is made of my own free will without any hope of recompense being offered me."

ALL IN FAVOR OF DEEP WATERWAY

GREAT ENTHUSIASM MARKS OPENING OF RIVER CONVENTION.

PRESIDENT FAVORS PROJECT

His Speech Is Wildly Applauded by the Immense Gathering—Chief Forester Pinchot Delivers Address on Conservation of Resources.

New Orleans, Oct. 30.—The fourth convention of the Lakes-to-the-Gulf Deep Waterway association opened here this morning with a most enthusiastic audience present. From the chieftains and formal talks among the delegates it was plainly evident that they knew what the inhabitants of the Mississippi valley desire. It was also certain that the wants of the people would be gratified if the assistance of the leaders of the nation could obtain them.

When William K. Kavanaugh of Missouri, president of the association, called the convention to order in the Athenaeum, he faced an assemblage that included hundreds of the most prominent citizens of the middle west. In the number were the governors of the Mississippi valley states, numerous senators and representatives, delegates named by state and national executives, and members of industrial and semi-public organizations without number. To assure the association of the support of the nation as a whole, there were present President Taft, Vice-President Sherman, Speaker Cannon and several members of the cabinet.

Status of the Project.

In opening the convention President Kavanaugh set forth briefly the present condition of the deep waterway work as follows:

1. The sanitary district of Chicago has built the deep waterway, practically to Joliet, nearly 40 miles, and $60,000,000 have been spent thus far on the work.

2. The entire route of the lakes-to-the-gulf deep waterway from Joliet to New Orleans, through the Des Moines river, the Illinois river and the Mississippi river, has been surveyed under direction of congress by United States engineers, who have officially reported to congress that the building of the deep waterway is feasible.

3. The people of the state of Illinois have adopted a constitutional amendment providing for a bond issue of $20,000,000, the money to be spent in constructing the deep waterway southward from Joliet.

4. A bill introduced by United States Representative Richard Bartholdt of Missouri is now pending in congress, providing for the issuance by the United States government of bonds to the amount of $500,000,000, the money to be spent in constructing this deep waterway from the lakes to the gulf and other meritorious projected river improvements.

5. It is intended to ask the Sixty-first congress to pass a bill providing definitely that the United States government undertake the construction of the deep waterway from the point where the Illinois work will end, to the Gulf of Mexico.

President Pledges Support.

Of course, the feature of the day was the address of President Taft this afternoon. His voice was worn out by the succession of speeches he has been called on to make, but the delegates heard enough to cause them to cheer wildly the promises of support given by the chief executive. He declared that if the 14-foot plan proved feasible and advisable, the present administration would favor the issuance of government bonds to defray the cost.

At the same time Mr. Taft made it plain that he would not stand for any plan to make a "pork barrel" of the project. He said he opposed any such general bond issue of $500,000,000 or $1,000,000,000 for waterways improvement, the money to be cut up and parcelled out to different sections. He declared that the improvement of waterways had been carried forward in a haphazard fashion in the past, and that a new method should be adopted.

Part of Greater Movement.

"I believe in the deep waterway," said the president. "I am for it, and I shall use all the power that I possess in doing what may be accomplished to give you citizens of this great valley what you so earnestly desire. It is all a part of a still greater movement inaugurated by Theodore Roosevelt, and properly called by him the conservation of our national resources."

"The projects for irrigation and for the improvement of waterways in the future are not to be for the purpose of distributing 'pork' to every part of the country. Every measure is to be adopted on the ground that it will be useful to the whole country. They are not to be adopted for sending certain congressmen back to Washington or for making certain parts of the country profitable during the expenditure of the money."

"We should take up every comprehensive project on its merits and determine whether the country where the project is to be carried out has so far developed as to justify the enormous expenditure of money and if it will be useful when done. When we decide in favor of a project, I believe in issuing bonds to carry it to completion as rapidly as possible. It has been proposed that we issue bonds for $500,000,000 or $1,000,000,000, and cut it up and parcel the money out in this and that section of the country. I am opposed to any such proposition, because it not only smells of the

'pork barrel,' but would be a 'pork barrel'.

Must Be of Practical Value. "I am in favor of stirring up people so something can be done. Then the next thing is to decide the question: 'How are you going to do the practical thing?' How are we going to bring it about? There's no use having a river if you don't use it. And there's no use pouring millions into it if that improvement is not going to be put into practical service."

"If we're going into it at all, we must have proper terminal facilities to permit the handling of the goods. You have got to make it profitable to merchants who are now using the railroads."

"While I am strongly in favor of developing the waterways, we must have a full understanding of the difficulties we have before us."

"This is my warning. We must go at this in a business-like way, for business purposes. We must make a thorough investigation and not be led astray by eloquence and wind."

Address by Clifford Pinchot.

When the long and loud applause that followed the president's address had subsided, Clifford Pinchot, chief of the United States forest service, was introduced and made a lively speech on the conservation of natural resources. Of the deep waterway project he said:

"A progressive plan for the development of our waterways is essential. Pending the completion of this plan, which should neither be weakened by excessive haste nor drowned in excessive deliberation, work should proceed at once on some of the greater projects which we know already will be essential under any plan that may be devised. First and foremost of these by unanimous consent is the improvement of the Mississippi river."

"A comprehensive and progressive plan of the kind we need can be made in one way only, and that is by a commission of the best men in the United States appointed directly by the president of the United States. Such a plan must consider every use to which our rivers can be put, and every means available for their control. It must deal with such great questions as the relation of the states and the nation in the construction and control of the river, and the co-ordination of rail and river transportation. The engineering difficulties may be larger than any we have yet solved. The adjustment of opposite demands between conflicting interests and localities, and other questions of large reach, and often of great legal complexity, will tax the powers of the best men we have. No part of the work will require greater temperance, wisdom and foresight than certain questions of policy and law."

This gave Mr. Pinchot the opening to discuss the charges that the forest service has gone beyond the law in carrying out its work, and his refutation of such charges was most vigorous and was met with hearty applause.

This evening the delegates to the convention will be entertained at a stag smoker by the Progressive union of New Orleans.

COOK DID ASCEND MOUNTAIN Affidavit Is Made That Barrill Said He Did.

Missoula, Mont., Oct. 30.—The Cook-Barrill-Mount McKinley controversy was enlivened to-day by the announcement of the securing of an affidavit from George W. Solleder, a prominent farmer of Ravalli county, living near the homes of Barrill and Printz, in which he and Dr. Cook declared Barrill told him he and Dr. Cook had climbed Mt. McKinley.

Dr. Cook's confidential agent announced that other affidavits had been secured, but he had decided not to make them public at this time, as the makers had been promised that the statements would only be submitted to the proper scientific bodies as evidence in the controversy.

Dr. Cook said the matter had now drifted down to a point where it was the affidavit of himself against the affidavit of Barrill, and the matter could only be settled by an expedition to Mount McKinley to recover the record.

The doctor reiterated his assertion that he would head a party of unbiased and unquestionable men to the mountain and recover his records.

ELECTION BALLOTS SEIZED.

Foed in Famous Kentucky County Bodes Serious Trouble.

Jackson, Ky., Oct. 30.—Breathless county, the seat of a feud which has been a prominent feature of the political history for many years past, is in the throes of a campaign which threatens to result in serious trouble before the approaching election of November 2 is over.

A full set of county officers is to be elected and feeling has been at fever heat for several weeks past. This culminated in the seizure of the stock of official ballots by a body of armed men, who forcibly took them from a local bank, where they had been deposited for safe keeping, and made off with them to a small hamlet in an almost inaccessible part of the county.

Sheriff Crawford, armed with warrants for the arrest of H. Hurst, county clerk, and William Sebastian, summoned a posse and went after the men and ballots.

The sheriff says that when he and his posse approached the house in which the ballots are alleged to be held they were covered with 40 guns in the hands of men who had been in the party which made the raid on the ballots in the bank here, and the sheriff and his men returned to Jackson. Later S. H. Hurst was arrested on a warrant charging him with having fraudulently removed, or permitted others to remove, the ballots.

M'CANN SEEKS A NEW TRIAL.

Advances Thirty-Three Reasons Why He Should Be Retried.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—Counsel for Edward McCann, convicted of accepting bribes from dive-keepers in the Des Moines street police district in his capacity of police inspector, announced that they would seek a new trial for their client on grounds that jury service in Cook county has been full of irregularities, as contended by State's Attorney Wayman himself. When the proceedings began before Judge Barnes in the criminal court this declaration of the McCann lawyers took the state somewhat by surprise.

Thirty-three reasons, altogether, why a new trial should be granted the convicted inspector and the verdict finding him guilty be set aside, were contained in several typewritten pages which Attorney J. Hamilton Lewis read to the court.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—Miss Lillian Lowery, 17-year-old daughter of George R. Lowery, turned amateur detective and landed behind the bars the man whom she suspected of being in the "white slave" trade, who four years ago tried to win her mother from their home and who during the past year has made several attempts to lure the girl herself from her parents.

J. M. Donnell of New York is the man arrested through evidence gathered by Miss Lowery. He was found at a downtown lodging house, where he had advertised to meet girls looking for employment. He was taken to the bridgehead after failing to pay a fine of $150 imposed by Judge Fuku.

MORE TRUTH

A retail piano concern in Chicago is advertising a new piano for $125 on low monthly payments. I am glad to see this. It looks to me like the beginning of the end of misrepresentation by dealers on the stencil proposition.

Stencils, as the trade well knows, are all of one grade, practically, and of approximately the same value. The public will soon learn this and will see or believe at least that any piano which does not bear the name of the manufacturer is worth no more than $125. I have been called a knocker because I have fought the stencil piano ever since I have been in the piano business. I am glad to note that within the past year the clean element in the trade has taken a stand against the stencil evil and the following resolutions recently passed by the National Piano Manufacturers' Association is a strong endorsement of the policy which I have followed during the five years that I have been in the business in Rock county:

Resolved, That it be the sense of this body in convention assembled that the sales of the stenciled piano be not approved by this body, and that we, the manufacturers, agree, each with the other, to use our influence with all of our dealers to discard whenever and wherever possible the sale of a stenciled piano.

You will find the name of the manufacturer on the fall board of every piano that I have ever sold. Bear in mind that you run no risk in buying from me because nothing but the best standard makes ever find a place on my floor. The Schiller is the most popular piano in Rock county today.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

Did you ever realize that depth of need of him to whom you give is a lever which makes big or little the value of your gift?

I am thinking of two of my neighbors whose apple trees have just yielded them a more bountiful harvest than they could use. One gave her superfluous apples to her neighbors who have other fruit of their own and are quite able to buy all the apples they want anyway.

From the other woman's stock of superfluous apples one basket went to a friend who lives in a two-room tenement in the heart of a city; a basket to the way to the old ladies' home, and another to the washwoman with her ten appahungry kiddies, and as big a basket as her husband could carry went to his little bootblack.

What a difference in the amount of happiness those two women created by their gifts.

"Do you know," I heard a rich woman say the other day, "sometimes I actually haven't had my motor out of the garage for a week at a time. You see, so many of my friends have cars and want me to go out with them."

That's rather an extreme instance but everyone knows how often people with carriages and motors invite the people who have those luxuries or at least can afford to hire them to share theirs.

I think it's positively wicked.

And besides, you people who do it don't get half the fun out of it.

Just go some time and take some little stay-at-home who was never in an auto out with you and see if, by the freshness of her delight in the novel experience, she doesn't bring back some of the delicious zest you felt when you drove your car for the first time.

A friend of mine who was married quite recently surprised all her acquaintances by including among her bridesmaids a little blind girl.

"So eccentric," said the people who never do such things.

"I was really and truly a bridesmaid just like other people. No one else in this world would ever have thought of asking me," said the little blind girl in solemn earnest.

"One of the sweetest things in all that wonderful time," said the bride, "was to see that poor girl so happy."

"Then said he also to them that bade him, When thou makest a dinner or a supper, call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, neither thy kinsmen, nor thy rich neighbors; lest they also bid thee again and a recompense be made thee."

"But when thou makest a feast, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind."

"And thou shalt be blessed for they cannot recompense thee."

You've read that of course. Did you think it meant merely foasts?

I fancied somehow it referred to all blessings.

ALL ABOUT THE HOUSE

The new vacuum broom has taken the world of women by storm. The carpet sweeper was a welcome assistant in the problem of keeping clean and at the same time reducing the dust to a minimum but the new carpet sweeper, well, it can hardly be called a sweeper and yet for want of a better name it goes under that head—the new carpet sweeper takes up all the dirt, scraps, bits of paper that ordinarily stick closer than a brother, matches that have finished their career of usefulness and last but not least, out of all every bit of dust as well. They cost no more than the old sweepers and are made to work by hand. Where a sum of money that would not look large to a man if it facilitated his work, may be expended, there is a set of appliances for taking the dust out of curtains and hangings, tops of books as they stand in the cases, wood work and picture moldings and stuffed furniture. The corners are as easy to clean as the center of the floor and that is a distinct gain over the carpet sweeper which always required the broom's assistance to thoroughly clean a room.

The cook who is puzzled by the constant use of the word casserole or the one who knowing the article and still daunted by the price asked, may easily solve this problem. An ordinary stoneware crock with any cover such as may be bought at any department store, where crockery is sold will serve quite as well and not be in the least liable. For baking beans there is a decided gain over the old bean pot which is deep and narrow at the top and so affords a smaller surface to brown. For cooking tough bits of meat or old fowl it has no equal. A fowl that has been thoroughly cleaned and trussed should be placed on a frame made to go inside the crock to lift the roast off the bottom. If you haven't any such thing take a tin out of one of the cake pans with a removable bottom and perforate it around the edge with a nail. This will allow the steam to pass and prevent the fowl from burning at the bottom. Fill under the frame with water and put the cover on tight. Cook for several hours if the fowl is old. Watch to see that the water does not boil away. Half an hour before time to serve remove the top and brown. The juice that has accumulated will make delicious gravy.

above was made of bronzed cloth in one of these new shades called moyen gris—a gray harmonizing exquisitely with the champagne trimming. This wrap was cut in one piece, lying plain across the shoulders and falling in rich, heavy folds below. The wide kimono sleeve is finished with a narrow turn-back cuff and caught up on the outer arm by a corded ornament of silk in self-tints.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Mawhinney of Johnstown, a popular young lady of pleasing personality who has many friends here as well as in her home town.

The bridegroom is the popular and genial cashier of the First National bank of Edgerton.

Waltham Watches

A Warning

The Waltham Watch Company in order to preserve the reputation of their watches and in order also to protect the people who buy Waltham Watches, hereby warn every one intending to buy a good watch, Waltham or any other, that it is not safe to buy a watch by catalogue from any of the mail order houses.

Buy a watch from a jeweler or watchmaker—because—a professional watchmaker before he delivers you the watch you have bought will overhaul it, correct any damage that may have happened to it, see that it is properly oiled, and in short, get it running right and keep it right. The retail jeweler's own reputation is at stake when he sells you a watch.

It is very different when you simply order from a catalogue, send on the money, and get just a watch.

Waltham Watch Company
Waltham, Mass.

N. R.—When buying a watch always ask your jeweler for a Waltham adjusted to temperature and position.

AFTER ALL

Good Bread is the Bread That

Pleases Most Individual Tastes

Yankee Bread will please the palate of the most critical—more so than any other bread.

Yankee Bread is baked in live steam, super-heated to 340 degrees.

In this fierce heat the starch granules swell until they burst into a myriad of fragments so that the yeast cells quickly convert them into sugar.

The result is the most perfect loaf ever baked, it is so moist and dainty and with such a delicious flavor that it is simply a revelation in bread making.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, October 30, 1869.—Jothings.—That unctuous substance known as butter commands 25 cents per pound at retail in this market. Thirty-two cents will buy it by the cruck.

Work on the second story of the Court house has been commenced. It is the hope of the contractors to get it up before cold weather puts an embargo on further proceedings.

A lot of tools found in the possession of the prisoners at the jail warned the Sheriff of trouble brewing. A cell has been assigned to each one of them.

Turnips that weigh less than twenty pounds are of no account in this county. The last specimen of this vegetable was left here by a Mr. Allen. It weighed twenty-three pounds.

Probably no city of its size in the West, certainly no one in Wisconsin, has expended so much for elegant church edifices as the city of Janesville. The value of church property in this city today is nearly as follows: Congregational, $60,000; Baptist, $50,000; Trinity, $25,000; Old Methodist, $10,000; Presbyterian, $5,000; Catholic, $10,000; All Souls, $15,000; Court Street Methodist, $35,000; Christ church, $5,000; Milwaukee street chapel, $3,500; totals, $251,500.

Rock county will raise one hundred acres of peppermint next season. Small show then of any stomach ache.

A golden eagle, so we are told, measuring five feet eight inches from tip to tip of wings, was shot near Milton, a few days ago.

Chicago and Milwaukee ladies, it is said, patronize Janesville dressmakers.

There was a beautiful auroral display on Thursday evening.

Congregational Church bell was distinctly heard the other evening at a point located twenty miles from here. Sleep but true.

Duck hunting is the prevailing sport at present, "along the Rock."

One Janesville aviator goes in heavy on the sport, carrying in his hawk boat a swivel with which he makes a great havoc among the birds.

Very Small and Struggling.

"What's this?" demanded the customs officer, pointing to a package at the bottom of the trunk. "That is a foreign book entitled 'Politics,'" answered the man who had just landed. "I guess I'll have to charge you a duty on it," rejoined the inspector. "It competes with a small and struggling industry in this country."

Boys Use Skull as Football.

When Principal John Willett Davidson of public school No. 73, east New York, entered the playground recently, he saw the boys playing football with a human skull. The boys said they found it in a lot opposite, once a negro burying ground. Davidson made the boys carry the skull back, dig a grave and bury it.

Most Bottoms Are Straight.

Some lawyers with well-known names are rascals who will swindle when they can; but the proportion of these is singularly small. On the whole, I am convinced that bookmakers are as straight as any other class, and many of them are souls of honor.

Pleasure.

There is a deep distinction between pleasure loving and pleasure seeking. The first spirit seems to find pleasure almost everywhere, while the latter worships itself in a fruitless search. The best pleasure is found of those who seek it not.
